

The Survival of the Crocodile

Whilst I was talking through a possible taxonomy of Jurassic business entities, S commented that it made most sense to be a crocodile. Which is something like a dinosaur, but smaller, more agile (mostly), better adapted and still around. It's a thought. I'm not sure how well this analogy will survive, but it could be worth investigating.